

KEN NORRIS

HAWAIIAN SUNRISE 2 (the sequel)

As far as I know, there are no bidets in prison.
Maybe the French have them. They have other miracles like French pastry, so why not that?

I hang around with addicts and drunkards now. I find the company. . .
refreshing. Writers can only do so much for your self-esteem.

Artie never disappointed. I love him to this day. The Hawaiian kids surfing would amuse him. He liked drugs more than anybody.
I could almost keep up with his speed rants, though at 3 a.m. I was starting to lose my place in existence.

It's like this. The ancient Greeks believed that to exist was to be guilty. Okay, but why?
It took fifty years to come to me. Because,
in order to survive, we have to kill other sentient beings.
And killing is immoral. The law of the jungle isn't any kind of law at all. Human,
we should know better, but do we?
