

ENDRE FARKAS

What if

this virus –
riding our every breath, cough
and sneeze
missile-fast targeting
our all too human flesh invisible as air, comes from where we have settled soiled the land and changed the climate for whom we rolled out the red carpet long ago
slips through every pore
silently
whoops and yelps
manifests its destiny –
what if this virus
is us?